

Is humanity (once again) on the brink?

There seems to be reasonable evidence that humanity as a whole is currently in grave danger. Drivers for a possible renewed relapse into a "pre-human cultural society", biblically referred to as "Adamah" in the Old Testament (OT) or the Five Books of Moses (Pentateuch), seems this time (probably once again) to be the human being himself. Extreme wealth of individuals, paired with striving for power over others and falling into a kind of eroticism of money seem to pave the way there. The last few years with possibly constructed pandemic ideas and their medical promises of healing, proxy wars possibly initiated with distraction thoughts and scientifically questionable climate delusions seem to support this fear: There are some indications that societies around the world are threatened with changes that most of them (should) not benefit from. There are some indications that in the end only a few will benefit from this, but that the majority will hardly be able to defend themselves from a certain point in time. There are some indications that only a few are opposed to this dangerous and, in the end, perhaps terrible development, also because they do not believe it to be possible at all. There are some indications that some people are only willing to do such things because they have the naturalistic view that their death is their end anyway and that after them the deluge: So you have to get the best out of it NOW FOR YOURSELF and make his closest ones (egoism, egocentricity).

There are some indications that such people have a new and false, naturalistic view that their death could at best be raised to a new level through the connection of man and machine, i.e. with artificial intelligence, transhumanism (e.g. WEF, Klaus Schwab, Yuval N Harari et al.) This fatal development, which may have been meticulously planned for many years and now seems to have been initiated, must be stopped vehemently. This can probably only be achieved through a paradigm shift in thinking that has been necessary for a long time anyway.

At least now it is necessary and can still stop the drivers of such developments in time: They will have to join this paradigm shift if they want to save their own future, which might otherwise be fatal in the long run.

This "spiritual paradigm shift" leads to the following insights:

1) Every living being, no matter what stage of life, is - also and especially in - its core an "informational (spiritual) being". The only reason why this piece of matter lives at all is because "life" itself is a force of the "informational". Life is "continuous", which is not a physical (material) system property.

2) Every living being initially develops only in its own way (collective), until it has gradually developed neuronal structures in the course of evolution, which allow more and more exchange with the really existing, informational and actual world. As a result, the spiritual part of the entity becomes increasingly individualized and at the same time deviates more and more from its piece of matter. It develops informationally faster, more divergent and more progressive.

3) This is how single (individual) "personalities" are created and this is already happening in the animal world. Above all, it is only with humans that growing self-confidence is added as a further mental quality in addition to consciousness. With this, there is more and more the ability to recognize everything.

4) And this also includes the knowledge of the culmination of the actual, spiritual (or informational) personality up to the zenith at the moment of (only material) death. From this alone it follows unmistakably and compellingly that this death is not the end, indeed cannot be!

5) At that point at the latest – of course, much earlier in the case of contemporaries who are already more evolved and thus aware – all those who have passed away will realize that NOTHING that ever happened – and therefore also nothing that has ever caused damage – will be forgotten. You will also realize that you are ALONE yourself personally responsible for everything, really everything that you have ever done (personal responsibility).

6) Everyone will then have to laboriously "work off" their guilt that has not yet been processed and paid off in the "here and now". This could take many centuries or even many more. In detail this means:

6.1) RECOGNIZE

6.2) REGRET

6.3) APOLOGIZE (heartily and honestly).

6.4) ASK FOR FORGIVENESS FROM EVERY INDIVIDUAL AFFECTED.

The latter is the most difficult and tedious, but then time is not an issue.

With that you will somehow have to iron out ALL the mistakes that have been made along the way, whenever. This is the REQUIREMENT to grow spiritually yourself, "LINEAR" and always upwards, like every spiritual being in this world. While the physical (material) world strives for more and more disorder (entropy), the informational (spiritual) world strives for ever higher order.

7) Each individual would therefore do well in the "here and now" to recognize this as early as possible and to act accordingly. That is why Jesus also says: Turn back!

8) This is the only way humanity can currently be saved.
Time is running out.

If one tries to analyze the perhaps real content of the OT, one will be able to establish that it is by no means a collection of "unique divine" stories or even guidelines.

This is hardly comprehensible, because the "actual spirit of God" (Ruach Elohim) from Genesis 2, Book Mose 1, rests and only "indirectly", and thus at best through the people as (good) "spirit of God in people" ( Yhwh Elohim) acts. In the course of huge periods of time, however, many people have repeatedly proclaimed themselves "God" in personal hubris and then forced their often deviant actions on people as the supposed spirit of God. This often seems little different today than it did in the past.

The "Five Books of Moses" (Pentateuch or OT) seem above all to be a form of RECORDING HUMAN AND CULTURAL HISTORY (!). The name "Moses" alone does not refer to a single person, but is probably an "honorable and high title" that was common long before. That is why Moses can also be found, for example, in the names of some Egyptian pharaohs (e.g. Ra-Moses = Ramses, Tut-Mosis). Translated, Moses means: the one (or that) saved over time.

Moses = "He or that saved over time" in turn points to the following:

1) The respective, up to then advanced cultural development of man has probably often reached a zenith, unfortunately followed by decadence and high spirits and then ended in a catastrophe with the annihilation of entire peoples and cultures.

2) As is well known, this was the case with the Romans, as well as with the ancient Greeks, the Babylonians and Persians, Byzantines, the ancient Egyptians, etc., and perhaps many others more and earlier (Atlantis?).

3) At least since the fire in the historical library in Alexandria, we know almost nothing more about earlier cultures. They all seem to have been advanced cultures of their kind with technical achievements that are still unknown or hardly known, and perhaps hardly suspected today.

4) In the end it was all gone. In the Bible it says: relapse into Adamah, which unfortunately has been and is translated COMPLETELY WRONG with "earth" again and again. Earth is called Aretz. Adamah is actually human the "pre-culture"...

This is what happened after deluges, fires, volcanic eruptions, earthquakes (known in the Bible as e.g. the Deluge or Sodom & Gomorrah), but also through wars between two tribes/ethnic groups (e.g. between the Cains and the Abels) or because stupidity always triumphed and then robbed reason of any basis and secure knowledge (e.g. expulsion from paradise, fire in Alexandria).

5) A completely misunderstood, but probably extremely important cultural milestone was the construction of the Cheops Pyramid and the Sphinx in Egypt. Reasonable considerations seem to prove that this was based on a very high level of mathematical knowledge, which even then had to be based on knowledge that is probably still completely foreign to most people today.

Just this much about this at this point: This structural co-construction is probably to be viewed against the background of four bright fixed stars, whose position does not change from our point of view. Possibly it results in a huge sundial, which points to massive - also climatic - events every approx. 13,000 years and covers a cycle of 26,000 years. This could also include regular pole shifts with their effects.

6) Even if we were to destroy our cultural development today - once again caused by man himself - after a few hundred or thousand years there would not be much left for posterity. No current hard drive, no other storage medium, no technical achievement etc. would survive that for long...

7) Die Menschheit wäre dann einmal mehr in der "Adamah" gelandet.

Irgendwann wann aber würde sie durch ein paar wenige, die langfristig überleben und sich dann aber auch wieder "neu erfinden"

(vgl. Noahs Arche), eine neue Kultur erwachen und ein neuer Anlauf zu einer geistigen Hochkultur beginnen.

8) Each individual, however, who today often takes great guilt on himself, must recognize that he then has to work through his problems alone in great torment for himself. His guilt will never be forgotten, although of course it will be forgiven at some point. It is up to each and every one of us today to RECOGNIZE this and to follow this realization in the "here and now" for the benefit of all.
